

Is the UO Really Broke?

The administration justified their paltry salary proposal by arguing that the university just can't afford more. Is this true? Dr. Howard Bunsis has analyzed the university's budget and will present his findings to the university community.

Thursday, May 28
6 pm to 7:30 pm
115 Lawrence Hall

Chair of Collective Bargaining Congress,
American Association of University Professors

Howard Bunsis, Professor of Accounting at Eastern Michigan University, analyzes budgets and provides expert testimony to legislators and collective bargaining arbitrators.

In 2011, Bunsis analyzed the University of Oregon budget and discovered $90 million dollars in surplus reserves. His presentation this year will examine the current state of the budget, review spending over the last few years, and provide guidance on the practical ways to think about budgets and priorities during bargaining.

Sponsored by United Academics at the University of Oregon, AAUP/AFT Local 3209, AFL-CIO
www.uauoregon.org

